meets precision ...

Our pipes form a symbiotic relationship between our craftsmen's skills and your own individual musical taste: we rely on high-quality materials and first-class finishing to German standards on the one hand, and where voicing is concerned we rely on our expert ear and our feel for the customer's sound requirements. The result is a thoroughly individual sound with excellent tonality.

and worldwide experience.

Teaming up with all the benefits our experience has to offer, allows you to concentrate on what really matters: building the organ and playing it. That is why Killinger pipes are delivered ready-voiced on request. All you have to do is install them, together with their fine sound. So it's no wonder that Killinger pipes have been performing to the highest standards for decades, not just in churches, but in the concert halls of this world, too.

The experience, handed down through generations of pipemakers, ensures that our pipes are made using top quality craftsmanship. No matter whether they are created to your own specific scaling requirements, or whether they are based on the historical designs of French, English or German organ building tradition. Variety is the ever-present keyword at Killinger. The scaling of reed pipes is an area where we can point to vast experience.
